Important Health Warning About Playing Video Games

Photosensitive seizures

A very small percentage of people may experience a seizure when exposed to certain visual images, including flashing lights or patterns that may appear in video games. Even people who have no history of seizures or epilepsy may have an undiagnosed condition that can cause these “photosensitive epileptic seizures” while watching video games.

These seizures may have a variety of symptoms, including lightheadedness, altered vision, eye or face twitching, jerking or shaking of arms or legs, disorientation, confusion, or momentary loss of awareness. Seizures may also cause loss of consciousness or convulsions that can lead to injury from falling down or striking nearby objects.

Immediately stop playing and consult a doctor if you experience any of these symptoms. Parents should watch for or ask their children about the above symptoms—children and teenagers are more likely than adults to experience these seizures. The risk of photosensitive epileptic seizures may be reduced by taking the following precautions: Sit farther from the screen; use a smaller screen; play in a well-lit room; do not play when you are drowsy or fatigued.

If you or any of your relatives have a history of seizures or epilepsy, consult a doctor before playing.

ESRB Game Ratings

The Entertainment Software Rating Board (ESRB) ratings are designed to provide consumers, especially parents, with concise, impartial guidance about the age-appropriateness and content of computer and video games. This information can help consumers make informed purchase decisions about which games they deem suitable for their children and families.

ESRB ratings have two equal parts:

- Rating Symbols suggest age appropriateness for the game. These symbols appear on the front of virtually every game box available for retail sale or rental in the United States and Canada.
- Content Descriptors indicate elements in a game that may have triggered a particular rating and/or may be of interest or concern. The descriptors appear on the back of the box next to the rating symbol.

For more information, visit www.ESRB.org.

Yellow: The military can see you, but they're unaware of your true identity.

Red: The military has identified you as a threat and they will attack.

Gray: Your current form is valid. Military won't engage you unless your actions reveal your true identity.

Red: Your current form has been compromised and enemies will engage you on sight.

Active: The icon also acts as a meter. When you are being watched by the military, your Shutter is yellow. If you perform superhuman actions, the meter fills with yellow. When it is completely filled, the icon turns red. This means the military has identified you and will attack on sight. When the military lose sight of you during an alert, the icon begins to drain from red back to gray.

If Heller has consumed a person within the world, an icon for the Stored Form is displayed at the upper left of the mini-map. These are the three categories of the Shapeshift Icon:

Heller: This is Heller's default form.

Civilian: The form of the last NYZ resident you consumed.

Military: The form of the last soldier or trooper you consumed. Military forms have the advantage of allowing you to use airbridges, access //BLACKNET Terminals and travel freely within restricted areas.
